

JOINT PRODUCT PORTFOLIO IN GAS METERING AND REGULATION

WE have the biggest range – YOU have the choice

One of the most important advantages arising from the merger of Elster and Instromet is the unique range of products, services and consultancy now on offer.

Whether it is a question of low-pressure applications in measuring the consumption of residential customers or high-pressure applications in the process of gas exploration, our unique range of products covers almost everything imaginable.

Diaphragm, rotary, turbine or ultrasonic meters? Low-pressure, medium-pressure or high-pressure regulators? You can find exactly the right product for any application and can rely on the expertise of our specialists.

Of course, we also supply the matching electronic devices. Our products range from radio modules to high-end flow computers. The corresponding communication and software modules complete the package on offer.

The company names have changed

ELSTER Handel GmbH	=>	Elster-Instromet GmbH
Instromet International N.V.	=>	Elster-Instromet N.V.

When it comes to analysing the quality of the gas being measured, we have just the right devices for you. We can offer state-of-the-art correlative systems as well as gas chromatographs to carry out a complete analysis of the gas. And if you want to know which technology is best suited for any particular case, we will also provide you with support in selecting and installing the system.

You can also look forward to innovations in the field of gas pressure regulation. Here we are in the process of bundling our resources in order to expand our portfolio of products. Our range of high-pressure regulators will soon be extended to include a new series of devices.

We can, of course, supply all of our products either as individual components or as part of a system solution. In the field of gas stations, we offer the complete range, from solutions for compact applications to test-rig technology in accordance with or as national standards.

In the following pages our product managers will give you more details on the individual product areas. If you have any questions or comments, we will be glad to hear from you.

And now it's up to you – YOU can look forward to a successful partnership, WE are your expert partners.

Frank Michels

f.michels@elster-instromet.com